Medical face mask with CE mark from Fetter + Spiritini

Mask FesanoCare according to European standard now available

Salzweg, November 24, 2020 - The Fetter and Spiritini Group today announced the successful CE certification of its new medical face mask. The Type IIR mask complies with the DIN EN 14683:2019 standard and is therefore suitable for use by medical professionals.

The experienced service provider from Salzweg attaches great importance to "Quality Made in Germany" - not only is the mask produced in Germany, but the materials are also purchased from German suppliers. "We are aware of our responsibility to bring a medical device to the market. Product quality and, of course, the safety of people is our main focus", said Frank Gollwitzer, Managing Director of F+S Produktion und Service GmbH, the producer of the masks. A hall at the Salzweg location was newly equipped and air-conditioned for the production while a highly automated production line guarantees consistent quality. 60,000 masks can be produced here daily.

During the development, industrialization, testing and CE-certification, F+S was advised by Activoris Medizintechnik, which consulted through the entire process. Over a period of six months, requirements were documented, risks analyzed, equipment qualified, in order to create the technical documentation for a medical device. Finally, the green light was recently given by the Hohenstein Institute, a renowned laboratory for tests in accordance with the DIN EN 14683:2019 Type IIR standard.

"We congratulate F+S on the market launch of their first medical device," said Axel Fischer, CEO of Activoris Medizintechnik GmbH. "Furthermore, we are pleased that F+S is not only looking for short-term success, but also sees mask manufacturing as a strategic market opportunity and consequently is expanding its quality management system. However, we hope and expect that this will also be increasingly recognized by politicians and public procurement agencies," said the Gemünden-based medtech specialist.

The medical masks are available immediately. F+S has already been selling a community mask under the umbrella brand "Fesano" for several weeks. It can be ordered under www.fesanocare.de or simply under bestellung@fesnocare.de. Each Friday from 9:00 to 12:00, the masks can be acquired also at the factory outlet in the forest road 53 in salt way.
